Associated Press
 WALT DISNEY CO. — Frank Wells, 62, president and chief operating officer, who helped propel the Walt Disney Co. to new success with such hits as "Beauty and the Beast" and the animated "Disney" feature films, died in a helicopter crash Sunday in Nevada. Two others died in the crash and two survived.

Wells and Disney helped boost annual revenues from $2.5 billion to $4.5 billion. The company's market value soared from $5 billion to $25 billion, and revenues from theme parks and resorts tripled, the company said.

The pair re-established Disney's dominance in animated films with a string of hits that included the animated motion pictures "The Little Mermaid," "Beauty and the Beast" and "Aladdin."

Elko County Sheriff Neil Harris said the helicopter was returning from the day's outing in the Ruby Mountains when

American freed in Somalia

Kidnapped Red Cross worker released unharmed
 by gunmen. No ransom paid.

From our news service
 MOGADISHU, Somalia — An American Red Cross worker, Alfred Potters, was released unharmed today by Somali gunmen who had abducted him after killing his security guard.

Potters was kidnapped Thursday by up to 15 gunmen who stopped his vehicle a few hundred yards from a United Nations checkpoint and killed his guard, who was riding in a second car.

"I don't know why they kidnapped me. I don't know because they didn't speak English."

Alfred Potters

Potters said he would leave Somalia later today. He did not disclose his destination but said he would later return to Somalia.

Potters was the first Red Cross worker kidnapped in Somalia, but three foreign Red Cross workers were killed in the country between 1991 and 1992, Kofstetter said. She said the kidnapping would not stop Red Cross operations in Somalia.

In addition to Somalia, Potters has served in Red Cross missions in Liberia and Sierra Leone. He escaped a kidnapping in Liberia.

Potters was the only American not involved with the U.N. operation in Somalia still working in Mogadishu after U.S. forces ended a 15-month mission last week.

Quarries, dams tied to quakes

Columbia University geologists note similarities between tremors in Berks County and those in India that could be tied to artificial reservoirs.

Push for new review

Recent earthquakes in Berks County and in India support the theory that dams, quarries and mines can increase the chance of quakes in historically stable areas, according to a study being presented today in California.

The study, which found links to quakes and nearby man-made features, will be presented at the Seismological Society of America's annual meeting in Pasadena, Calif.

Seismologist Leonard Seber of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Earth Observatory, an author of the study, is warning Berks County residents of the danger of quakes.

Seber led a team of scientists from Columbia that set up monitoring equipment after the Jan. 18 temblor.

The quake, which measured 4.3 and 4.6 on the Richter scale, caused about $2.5 million in damage to some 210 homes and the Spring Township sewage treatment plant.

The R.J. Brunson Inc. quarry near Van Road and State Hill Road, Spring Township, was shut down and filled with water before the quake, Seber said.

In India, a quake measuring 6.3 on the Richter scale destroyed more than 70 villages and killed more than 10,000 people, according to the study.

The quake occurred in an area without a history of significant seismicity and far from any known faults, Seber said. As a result, maps had classified the region as one of the least likely to experience a damaging quake.

A 60-foot reservoir created by a dam in 1991 a few miles from where the quake was centered may have contributed to the temblor, Seber said.

The study also found that more than one-third of India's quakes during the 1970s could be tied to artificial reservoirs. More than 100 smaller tremors were reported in the area a year before the main quake.

"Early warning signs were ignored," Seber said.

Robert Jacob, an associate professor of geology at the State University of New York at Buffalo, said water appearing in new places, as in a reservoir or quarry, could put enough pressure on rock formations to cause the earth to shift.

Jacob is studying a small quake that struck Caylierville, N.Y., recently after the roof of an underground salt mine collapsed.

He said rock formations holding water are like balloons sitting on rotten floors rather than solid surfaces.

Civilians in Gorazde flee advancing Serbs

Western nations make it clear they will not take concerted military action to save the besieged Muslim enclave of 65,000 people.

Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Bosnian Serb troops pushed deep into the eastern Muslim enclave of Gorazde, breaching defense lines in three places and sending civilians fleeing in panic, military officials said today.

A Bosnian government army officer called the situation critical. Western nations, however, made clear they would not take concerted military action to save the besieged area of 65,000 people from the Serbs.

Kris Janowski, a U.N. relief official, said 40 people had been killed and 210 wounded since the Serb offensive began seven days ago. Doctors need evacuation, according to two U.N. doctors trapped by fighting, he said.

Both sides reported Serb advances, but with only four U.N. monitors in the enclave, the United Nations could not confirm them.

Wall Street beginning to recover

Associated Press

NEW YORK - The battered stock market took comfort this morning from news that the economy isn't growing as quickly as feared, and the Dow Jones Industrial average began climbing at the opening.

At 11 a.m. on Wall Street, the Dow Jones average of 30 big-name stocks was up 62.48 points at 1,065.92, more than erasing its 43-point drop Monday. Broad market indexes were also higher.

Buyers stepped in to pick up stocks they considered bargains, one day after the market shuddered to its weakest level in six months.

The catalyst for the rebound was the government's monthly economic forecasting report showing the growth isn't producing much inflation. Fear of inflation has been a major reason for the weakness in stocks and bonds.

The report also soothed anxiety in the bond market, where the 30-year bond's price rose. Its rate eased to 7.25 percent from 7.40 percent late Monday.

Small investors aren't happy.

Parents say public schools good, but could be better

Survey by the American Association of School Administrators finds parents tend to grade their own schools better than schools generally.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Parents generally give good grades to their local schools, but think they could become even better by getting tough on troublemakers, increasing parental involvement and reducing overcrowding, according to a survey released today.

"We need to be sure, as we constantly work to improve education in this country, that we focus on what is important, what will have the greatest impact in the classroom and on children's lives," said Paul Houston, executive director of the American Association of School Administrators.

The association's survey said public school parents tend to grade their own schools better than schools generally.

Sixty-five percent gave their local public schools an A or B, while 33 percent gave the same grades to schools in general. Only 17 percent of the parents awarded As or Bs to big-city schools, but 56 percent said small-town schools earned those grades.

The parents gave all public schools a passing grade.

"We definitely have a correlation between how people feel about their schools and the proximity and size of the schools they know best," Houston said.

Of the 1,000 registered voters surveyed, not all of whom were parents of schoolchildren, 33 percent said their local schools needed major reform, and 63 percent said major reform was needed nationally.

"Our schools aren't perfect, but

Oven door used to attack police

POTTSVILLE — A Pottsville man has been arrested on charges he attacked police officers with an oven door.
David Draine, 35, was arrested at the Market-Square Apartments about 1:15 a.m. Saturday when police responded to a report of a man smoking weed.
Officers found Draine holding the oven door from his stove, police said. He swung the door at them and also tried to grab a police service revolver during a struggle, police said.
One officer was treated at a hospital for a knee injury.
Draine was treated for a gash on his forehead and remained in Pottsville Hospital on Monday. The hospital declined to release his condition.
Draine had a blood-alcohol content of 0.13 percent and also had been taking drugs, police said.
He was charged in warrants with aggravated assault on a police officer, simple assault, recklessly endangering another person, disorderly conduct, personal disorderly conduct, criminal mischief and public drunkenness.

Freddie rape Ridge on voting record

HARRISBURG — Republican Attorney General Ernie D. Prease Jr. is keeping up his attacks on Congressman Tom Ridge's voting record.
In a letter mailed to several thousand party activists, Prease's campaign calls Ridge "a liberal Republican... who thinks like Bill Clinton."

Prease and Ridge are two of five candidates making the Republican presidential nomination in the May 16 primary.
The floor lists what it calls "the floor" on Ridge, that he votes half the time with President Clinton, supported the 1990 federal tax increase, has voted on both sides of the abortion issue, has sponsored legislation calling for nearly $1 billion in new spending and missed 10 percent of the congressional roll calls in 1990.
Ridge and Prease have focused on one another in the primary campaign.

Castille's expenses are questioned

HARRISBURG — Newly elected state Supreme Court Justice Ronald Castille has not submitted receipts for his monthly expenses despite a campaign promise to make "every cent of court spending accountable to the public," The Philadelphia Inquirer reported Monday.
The newspaper said Castille, who took office in January, has not submitted receipts for almost $1,500 in expense money.
Castille, a Republican and former Philadelphia district attorney, criticized the court's expense-account system during his campaign and called for caps on lodging and meals as part of a 11-point reform plan.

In campaign literature distributed before the general election in November, Castille wrote: "I have stated in the past that if taxpayer dollars are being spent by public officials, taxpayers have the right to know exactly how those dollars are being spent."
Justices are entitled to $25,000 annually in expense money and $8,000 a year to lease or purchase a car. Payments are made monthly in evenly divided installments.

Fund-raising group to stop activities

HARRISBURG — A fund-raising organization accused of deceptive solicitations on behalf of veterans groups will pay $15,000 and stop activities in Pennsylvania, the Attorney General's office said Monday.
Under an agreement with Noel Enterprises Inc. and Noel Publishing Inc., which share an Arizona address, the state will drop a suit filed in January 1993. The state charged that telephone solicitors working for the companies falsely claimed to be members of Pennsylvania vets groups.

The state said that although the fund-raisers said donations would benefit veterans, most of the money that was collected was kept for fund-raising expenses.
The Noel companies will pay $10,000 in restitution, which will be distributed to state veterans groups, and $5,000 that will reimburse the state for the costs of the investigation.
The agreement must be approved by Commonwealth Court.

Pair to share Cash 5 game jackpot

HARRISBURG — Two players matched all five winning numbers drawn in Monday's Pennsylvania Cash 5 game and will share a jackpot worth $108,291, a lottery official said.
The two winners will collect $54,145.50 each.
Lottery director Charles W. Kline said 308 players matched four numbers and won $332, 6,086 players matched three numbers and won $12.50 each, and 81,365 players matched two numbers and won $1.
Thursday's Pennsylvania Cash 5 jackpot will be worth at least $100,000.
Today's Pennsylvania Wild Card Lotto jackpot will be worth at least $1 million. Saturday's Pennsylvania Super 7 jackpot will be worth at least $18 million.

Larsen's arrangement not secret, lawyer says

When the state Supreme Court justice made the choice to involve his employees in picking up his prescription drugs, he violated his own privacy, according to Deputy Attorney General Lawrence N. Claus.

PITTSBURGH — State Supreme Court Justice Rolf Larsen's arrangements for receiving prescription drugs in his employees' names violated his privacy instead of protecting it, a prosecutor said Monday.

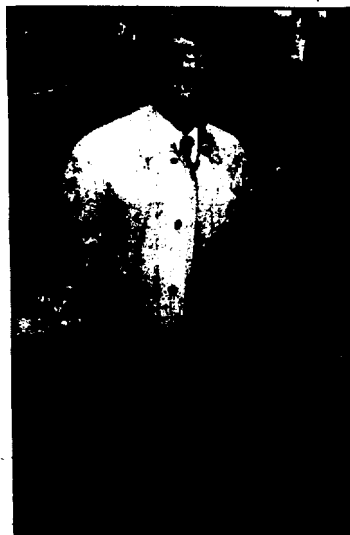

In questions of witnesses, Deputy Attorney General Lawrence N. Claus questioned Larsen's use of drugs to treat pain and mental illness would have remained a secret between him and his physician if he hadn't involved his employees.

Larsen, 58, will testify in his own defense, probably late this week. He is accused of 15 felony drug counts and has said he obtained drugs through his employees to protect his privacy.

Claus said Larsen hid the extent of his drug use not only from the public but also from parties who needed to know about the medicines — his insurance company, his doctor and his family.

He questioned two of Larsen's former employees and a law clerk whose names were on prescriptions that went to Larsen. Anne Leont, who is still a law clerk in Larsen's office, said she had no idea he was taking drugs.

At Claus' request, Leont said the words on the back of the prescriptions were "I didn't feel there was anything wrong," Leont said.

Pennsylvania's Justice Rolf Larsen from the first degree his testimony on charges that he illegally obtained prescription drugs.

Larsen's plan was discovered when court employees testified last year before a grand jury investigating Larsen and other justice system officials. The grand jury indicted Larsen, his wife, Anne Leont, and his law clerk, Stephen Leont, on charges of illegal drug use and obstruction of justice.

Activists decry cuts in welfare

Casey proposal slashes monthly grants of $205 to just two $205 allowances every two years.

PHILADELPHIA — Gov. Robert P. Casey's proposed cuts in welfare programs would leave thousands of poor people completely destitute and result in higher rates of crime and violence, activists said at a rally Monday.

"We don't like what the system is doing," Linda Harper, a member of the Union of the Handicapped, told about 300 people outside the State Office Building. "They're trying to take what little money we have. We have nowhere to live."

The rally was held by the Black Church of Philadelphia and Vicinity to protest Casey's proposal to cut public assistance to "able-bodied" jobless workers to two months cash allowance every two years.

Casey balanced his budget in part by calling for massive welfare cuts in exchange for promises of more jobs and training for the poor in the coming fiscal year.

Demonstrators rally Monday in Harrisburg against proposed cuts in welfare that they claim will result in higher crime rates and increased violence.

The governor's plan would cut monthly cash grants of $205 for about 20,000 people to two $205 checks every two years. Casey has said he would spend through the cuts would create more jobs for the poor.

"We could spend $205 every two seconds and still not have enough to put food on the table," the Rev. William Blaine said.

Casey spokesman Vince Carucci said in a telephone interview the governor plans to spend $1.1 billion more than required by the federal government. He said the general assistance program would be expanded while keeping medical and food benefits in place.

"It's not exactly as though thousands of people are being thrown to the wolves," Carucci said.

But Harper, who described herself as homeless, jobless and a mother rejected, said there are no jobs to be had. She carried a sign that read "Amenities won't kill the poor."

Protesters said they will march in Harrisburg later and lobby lawmakers to vote against the proposal.

Teachers' sickout forces closing of Chester High

CHESTER — A majority of teachers at Chester High School called in sick Monday, prompting the school to close.

Superintendent JoAnn Manning said she believes more than half of the 135 teachers who took sick days were protesting because they have been working without a contract since June 30 and were asked to teach during spring break.

"You might characterize this as selective work action," Manning said.
The state said that although the fund-raisers said donations would benefit veterans, most of the money that was collected was kept for fund-raising expenses.
The Noel companies will pay $10,000 in restitution, which will be distributed to state veterans groups, and $5,000 that will reimburse the state for the costs of the investigation.
The agreement must be approved by Commonwealth Court.

Measure urged on underage drinking

Three legislators call for stricter enforcement, including warrantless searches.

HARRISBURG — Three Republican lawmakers who believe the state has gone too far on underage drinking said Monday they will propose legislation to allow warrantless arrests for minors who drink.

Rep. Patrick E. Fliegler of Westmoreland and Jeffrey E. Piccola of Harrisburg were joined by Rep. Kathleen T. Traylor of Lancaster County in calling for stricter enforcement against underage drinking.

Fliegler and Piccola said they were outraged by two recent court rulings that overturned convictions for underage drinking. In both cases, the justices said the arrests were unlawful because they were made without warrants.

"This court... has continually taken away from police which are essential if we are to protect the public through effective enforcement of our DUI and underage drinking laws," Piccola said.

In one case the lawmakers cited, an Allegheny County man appealed his conviction for supplying beer to minors, saying police searched his home without a warrant. Officers went to the home after a teen complained he was assaulted at a party.

The justices said in the February ruling that lower courts had erred in deciding the search was proper without a warrant. Without probable cause and changing circumstances, police should have obtained a warrant, the justices said.

A warrantless search violates federal constitutional protections against unreasonable search and seizure, the ruling said.

Fliegler said the ruling showed the commonwealth with which the Supreme Court has treated the problem of underage drinking.

"It is obviously one of its most epidemic problems and the direct link between underage drinking and traffic fatalities and serious health injury among Pennsylvania's children," Fliegler said.

True said federal statistics show that nearly 4,000 people ages 16 to 20 were killed in auto accidents involving underage drinking in 1991. She had no statewide figures.

The American Civil Liberties Union joined in decrying the problems of drunken driving and underage drinking, but said warrantless arrests conflict with constitutional protection against unreasonable searches.

"Requirements that the police to some kind of federal authority is to protect the citizens against unlawful search and seizure," state ACLU legislative director Larry Frankel said.

"The remedy for police mistakes is not to reduce the constitutional protections that benefit all of us, but to more closely monitor what these mistakes are," Frankel said. "The entire amount of time that the police should have taken in this kind of case would have protected their arrests."

In the second case, a 19-year-old in Erie County argued that his arrest for underage drinking was illegal because a search of his car had no warrant.

Superior Court reversed that conviction and was upheld by the Supreme Court, which said state law does not allow warrantless arrests for underage drinking.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Justice Harry A. Blackmun, a liberal anchor of the Supreme Court and author of the landmark 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion nationwide, announced today that he will retire at the end of the current term.

President Clinton, citing Blackmun's distinguished 24-year career on the Supreme Court, said, "The shoes are large, and we search for a replacement." President Clinton said he will announce the name of the person to fill the vacant spot in June.

"I shall miss the court, the work, the relationships," Blackmun said. "But I am in good hands."

At a White House announcement, Clinton named Blackmun as judge of "exceptional reason, with scholarship and grace" who defined all political labels.

Clinton cited Blackmun's support of "the rights and interests of the individual" and his "dedication to the rule of law and the dignity of the individual."

Teamster boss claims wages, jobs at issue

Carrey says strike against major truck companies brought on by loss of good jobs, decent wages.

From our news service

WASHINGTON - Teamsters union president Ron Carey said today his members had called a strike against major truck companies due to losses of jobs and wages.

"What this strike is really about is what has been happening in America, the loss of good jobs, decent wages," he said on ABC's "Good Morning America" program.

He said the main issue in the nationwide strike was the shift from union truck drivers to lower-paid non-union drivers and that the Teamsters had found no concern from the truck company owners in bargaining sessions.

"They are replacing full-time workers with part-time workers with no health benefits or little benefits," he said. "I think what Teamsters are saying around America is enough is enough," Carey said.

"We are at a loss that it's foreign to them," said Robert Young, spokesman for the truck company owners.

He said that existing contracts agreed between major truck companies and the Teamsters had clauses allowing the use of subsidiary methods of shipping.

Nationwide, the Teamsters said 75,000 of its members at major trucking companies across the country walked off their jobs at midnight and another 20,000 at other freight companies could strike later. Picket lines were set up at terminals around the country.

In Pennsylvania, truckers abandoned their rigs early this morning and set up pickets at terminals in Carlisle.

Strikers walked in a slow circle outside a Roadway Express terminal that employs about 1,000 workers. They carried signs and blocked the entrance to the loading docks. Across U.S. Route 11, pickets

bomb kills 8 in Israeli town

Extremist Islamic group Hamas claims suicide attack which also injured 20 was carried out to avenge Hebron massacre.

JERUSALEM - A car bomb exploded next to a commuter bus in the northern Israeli town of Afula today, killing at least eight people and wounding 20, police and hospital said.

The militant Islamic group Hamas said it carried out the suicide attack to avenge the Feb. 28 Hebron massacre.

A caller to a Western news agency said Hamas used 200 pounds of explosive. The caller named the suicide bomber as Raed Zakarneh, 19, of Qabqab in the occupied West Bank. Israeli police had no immediate comment on the Hamas claim.

Northern region police chief Yankev Granet said preliminary reports suggested the blast was a suicide attack, a day after the end of a 40-day Muslim mourning period for some 30 Muslim worshippers killed in the Hebron massacre.

"I am sorry to say that eight people were killed," Granet told Israeli Radio. He said the driver of the explosive-laden car was among the dead. "Bodies were strewn in the street, on fences, on trees," a firefighter said. The car's steering wheel was found some 30 yards from the bus stop where the vehicle exploded.

An Israeli cabinet minister said the killing would not derail peace talks with the Palestine Liberation Organization which are opposed by Hamas and other militant Islamic groups.

The caller, who would not give his name, said Hamas military wing, the Izz al-Din al-Qassam Brigades, carried out the attack. He warned Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of more suicide bombings.

Rwanda fighting reported

Battles in capital city follow deaths of presidents of two nations when their planes in apparently shot down. Three Cabinet members and three U.N. observers are reportedly kidnapped.

Associated Press
NAIROBI, Kenya - Fighting broke out in Rwanda's capital today after the presidents of Rwanda and Burundi died when their planes were apparently shot down.

Members of Rwanda's presidential guard also kidnapped three Cabinet ministers and three U.N. military observers today, U.N. spokesman Muterahanga said.

The identity of the kidnappers or those who allegedly shot down the plane was not immediately known.

Rwanda and Burundi have been wracked for decades by fighting between the Hutu and Tutsi ethnic groups, one of Africa's most savage ethnic feuds. Both President Juvénal Habyarimana of Rwanda and President Cyprien Ntaryamira of Burundi were Hutu, which are majorities in both countries.

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali expressed "horror and profound personal grief" over the deaths of the two leaders. In a statement issued at U.N. headquarters in New York, he said he ordered U.N. peacekeepers in Rwanda to assist the government in determining what happened.

Guye, speaking by telephone from Rwanda's capital, Kigali, said that there were reports of house-to-house killings and that the city's streets were empty except for small, quick-moving groups of youths armed with machetes and clubs.

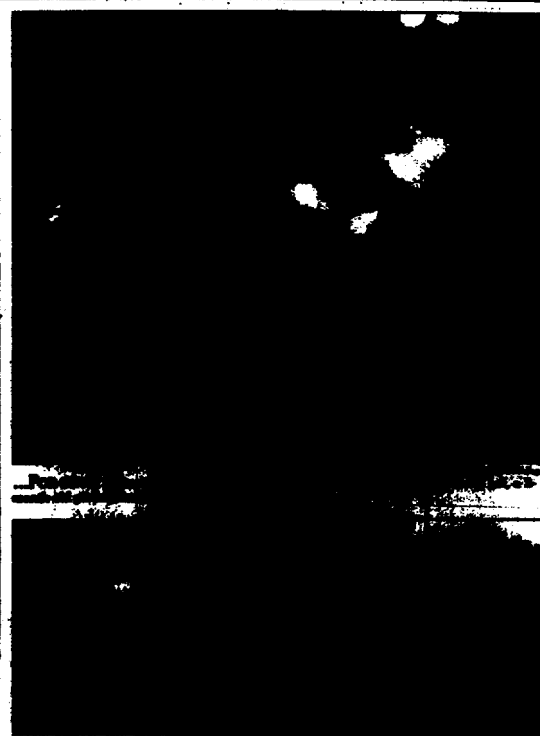

No demands had been received for the release of the ministers of Labor and Social Affairs, of Information and Agriculture or the three unarmed U.N. military observers, Guye said.

He said it was not clear who was involved in the fighting.

"So far as we can see, it seems that there are a lot of guns in a lot of hands and we don't really know who is giving orders to shoot at who and for what reason," said Guye.

Prime Minister Agathe Uwilingiyimana of Rwanda told Radio France Internationale:

12 on list to replace Blackmun

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt tells Clinton he's not interested in Supreme Court post. Sen. George Mitchell is a leading contender.

Associated Press
WASHINGTON - White House officials are reviewing about a dozen possible candidates for President Clinton's second appointment to the Supreme Court, making no secret of the fact that retiring Justice Elderly Justice Blackmun is high on the list.

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt also is on the list, even though he said he wasn't interested and had told Clinton he wasn't of to stay put.

Blackmun, 78, and Babbitt were the only two candidates publicly acknowledged as under consideration, but White House officials insisted that the list was longer and that no decision had been made.

It was no surprise to Clinton when Justice Harry A. Blackmun announced Wednesday that he was retiring. The 68-year-old justice had told the president months ago that he would retire.

Blackmun called the White House on Monday to say he was ready to announce his decision.

There was a torrent of speculation about Blackmun's successor. Likely candidates were said to include federal Judge Stephen G. Breyer of Boston, Jose A. Cabranes of Connecticut and Appeals Judge Richard Arnold of Little Rock, Ark.

Attorney General Janet Reno and Solicitor General Drew Days also were mentioned. One official floated the name of U.S. District

Sen. George Mitchell

Judge Ann Clair Williams of Illinois as a long-shot prospect she was named to the bench by Ronald Reagan in 1988.

Preliminary work on Blackmun's successor already had been under way because of anticipation of his retirement. The search goes into high gear starting from a base of names compiled last year when Justice Byron White left the court.

White House special counsel Lloyd Cutler said, "There are other people who deserve consideration who were not seriously in the running the last time around. He said the eventual list would be 10 to 12, 'more or less'."

Cutler, leading the search with Mark McLarty, the chief of staff said he expected Clinton to announce his nominee within "a matter of weeks."

Violence is scattered in truckers strike

Walkout by 75,000 drivers, in its second day, looks to cripple deliveries. But the biggest effect has been to create business for non-union companies.

Associated Press
NEW YORK - Scattered violence broke out on picket lines around the country as Teamsters on strike against some of the nation's biggest trucking companies sought to cripple delivery of everything from toilet paper to auto parts.

As the walkout by up to 75,000 drivers, dock workers and mechanics entered its second day today, its biggest effect had been to create new business for non-union trucking companies.

Consumers saw little impact because many of the 22 companies haul raw materials and parts rather than finished products, and most supermarkets and food producers have their own fleets and aren't part of the dispute.

It is the Teamsters' first nationwide strike since 1979.

The union walked out over a plan by the companies to give more work to low-paid, part-time workers and use more trucks.

The Teamsters' contract expired last week. No talks were scheduled.

"They want to fill their pockets and empty ours," driver Joseph Wilson said.

The trucking companies have said that using part-timers is vital to reducing costs.

In Portland, Ore., scores of loaded trucks were parked at a Consolidated Freightways terminal as a dozen pickets stood in the cold rain, circling around a fire in a barrel to keep warm. Teamster Bob Jett said there was only one way for the trucks to get to the road - through the picket line.

"I wouldn't put myself in that danger," he said, "Would you?"

No serious violence was reported on the picket line.

In Highland, Ohio, strikers blocked a truck carrying a Yellow Freight yard and cut its back lines. No arrests were reported.

Striking drivers abandoned about 35 rigs on a highway yard in Adelanto, Calif., north of Los Angeles. Most of the trucks had been damaged with broken windshields and headlights, KATV reported. About 120 pickets shouted insults at management drivers took the trucks into the yard.

Six people, including a local president, were charged with idle and disorderly conduct in Woburn, Mass., for allegedly blocking the entrance to a terminal. Eight parked trucks were vandalized at East Providence, R.I.

The 22 companies negotiated jointly, but the 18 small ones will be allowed to sign tentative agreements with the Teamsters over the next few days and get their trucks rolling, said Charles O'Connor, a lawyer for the companies.

The 18 companies operate mostly on the East Coast.

The four other haulers - Roadway, Yellow Freight Consolidated and ABF - employ nearly 70,000 of the strikers.
